LARAMIE, Wyo., Feb. 25.—Twenty passengers were injured, three probably seriously, and at least two score others were bruised and shaken up when the crack Union Pacific passenger train, "Pony Express" was derailed near Bosler, Wyo., late last night.

The derailment was believed to have been caused by a broken axle on the dining car.

Seven coaches of the 16-car train left the tracks and overturned, five of them, two Pullmans, two chair cars and the observation car, went off the tracks together and hurled down a 20-foot embankment. Three of these came to rest on their wheels and the remaining two on their sides.

Two chair cars jerked along the frozen ground for nearly a mile before overturning.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Uncle Sam's answer to Chancellor Hitler's declaration that Nazi penetration of South America "is nobody's business but Germany's" will be fortification of Puerto Rico as an impregnable "Hawaii of the East," it was learned today.

The West Indian island possession will be converted into a combined navy and army air and submarine base, bristling with high-powered arms, as the spearpoint of America's defense of the Western Hemisphere in the Atlantic.

Immediate plans call for: 1. Installation with a minimum of delay of a naval submarine and air base on Isla Lagrange in San Juan harbor.

2. Establishment of an army air base on the island proper with heavy stationary and mobile long-range coast and anti-aircraft artillery.

3. Erection of huge underground gasoline and fuel oil supply tanks.

Item Listed in Bill

The major item in the $48,800,000 air and submarine base measure now being rushed through congress calls for initial expenditure of $9,000,000 for the navy's air and submarine base on Isla Grande. The site already has been transferred to the navy from the island government.

"A base for patrol planes situated this far eastward in the Caribbean will be of major strategic importance," the navy board headed by Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn reported to President Roosevelt and congress.

The Hepburn report added that Puerto Rico also is of tremendous "importance strategically for submarine operations in the Caribbean."

Air Base Approved

President Roosevelt is reported to have approved plans for establishment of a $12,000,000 army air base on the East coast of the island near heavily fortified Culebra island. Major George Kenney and Major W. T. Lawson of the army air corps, now in Puerto Rico as official observers of the naval war games, have been charged with investigating suitable sites for the army's base. The plan provides for an installation of 200 officers and 2,500 enlisted men as a permanent defense establishment.

Fortification of Puerto Rico is considered second only in importance to Hawaii in defense of the continental United States, of the Panama Canal and of South America. It would extend America's present defense line 2,000 miles out to the Atlantic.

The Puerto Rican defenses would be bolstered by a secondary air base in the nearby Virgin islands. Both lie athwart the Atlantic trade routes and would flank ocean approaches to the continental United States and to South America. Because of its position, Puerto Rico is considered the ideal focal point for protection by long-ranging bombers and subsea boats of an area extending west to the Panama Canal, 1,000 miles eastward into the Atlantic, north to (Continued on Page Eight)

Speed Ahead Signal
For Big Program

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Uncle Sam's answer to Chancellor Hitler's declaration that Nazi penetration of South America "is nobody's business but Germany's" will be fortification of Puerto Rico as an impregnable "Hawaii of the East," it was learned today.

The West Indian island possession will be converted into a combined navy and army air and submarine base, bristling with high-powered arms, as the spearpoint of America's defense of the Western Hemisphere in the Atlantic.

Immediate plans call for:

1. Installation with a minimum of delay of a naval submarine and air base on Isla Lagrande in San Juan harbor.
2. Establishment of an army air base on the island proper with heavy stationary and mobile long-range coast and anti-aircraft artillery.
3. Erection of huge underground gasoline and fuel oil supply tanks.

Item Listed in Bill

The major item in the $48,800,000 air and submarine base measure now being rushed through congress calls for initial expenditure of $9,000,000 for the navy's air and submarine base on Island Grande. The site already has been transferred to the navy from the island government.

"A base for patrol planes situated this far eastward in the Caribbean will be of major strategic importance," the navy board headed by Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn reported to President Roosevelt and congress.

The Hepburn report added that Puerto Rico also is of tremendous "importance strategically for submarine operations in the Caribbean."

Air Base Approved

President Roosevelt is reported to have approved plans for establishment of a $12,000,000 army air base on the East coast of the island near heavily fortified Culebra island. Major George Kenney and Major W. T. Lawson of the army air corps, now in Puerto Rico as official observers of the naval war games, have been charged with investigating suitable sites for the army's base. The plan provides for an installation of 200 officers and 2,500 enlisted men as a permanent defense establishment.

Fortification of Puerto Rico is considered second only in importance to Hawaii in defense of the continental United States, of the Panama Canal and of South America. It would extend America's present defense line 2,000 miles out into the Atlantic.

The Puerto Rican defenses would be bolstered by a secondary air base in the nearby Virgin Islands. Both lie athwart the Atlantic trade routes and would flank ocean approaches to the continental United States and to south America. Because of its position, Puerto Rico is considered the ideal focal point for protection by long-ranging bombers and subsea boats of an area extending west to the Panama Canal, 1,000 miles eastward into the Atlantic, north to

Johnny Anderson's Last Half Buckets Help Pirates Cause

It's Ashville against Pickaway boys and Darby against Pickaway girls tonight in the finals of the Pickaway county basketball tournament, festivities beginning at 7 o'clock with a contest for third place between Scioto and New Holland varsities. The girls' championship will be decided at 8 o'clock, and an hour later the boys' title contest will begin.

Friday evening's semi-finals in the boys' tournament produced some of the outstanding basketball of the meet with the following results:

Ashville 32, New Holland 20.
Pickaway 40, Scioto 34.
The girls' third place game was won by Walnut township, 10-6 over Scioto. Both teams lost their first round games to Pickaway and Darby respectively.

Third Place Sought

Pickaway county's third representatives to the district tournament, to be held at Otterbein college, Westerville, will be decided in the game between Scioto and New Holland. Ashville and Pickaway are certain of the No. 1 and No. 2 positions, depending on which one wins tonight. The county is permitted three entries in the district Class B tournament.

There is much discussion concerning just what will happen when Ashville and Pickaway get together. The Broncos have a distinct height advantage over the Pirates, but many believe that Pickaway's fast break tactics will do much to overcome this margin. The Broncos have not yet played the kind of basketball of which they are capable. They were much more impressive during the year's schedule than they have been at any time since the tournament started.

Pickaway has been at its peak in games against Darby and Scioto, turning in brilliant performances in each encounter.

When the smoke clears at about 10:10 tonight, the champion will have been determined. Right now there isn't a sports fan who can name the winner. Pickaway county tournaments are strange that way.

Dick Kirk Hits Hoop

New Holland caged the first bucket of the evening when Dick Kirk broke away from his guard and pegged a bunny from under the net to give New Holland a brief lead. This was nullified after a flurry of passes when Walden batted in a follow. The teams battled hard through the first period, Ashville gaining a 7-4 edge as the quarter closed.

The Broncos practically won the ball game in the second quarter when Brown's free throw was the only point the hard-scrapping Bulldogs were able to glean from the tight Ashville man for man defense. The Broncos chalked up six counters to hold a 13-5 lead at the halftime. Ashville's margin was cut to seven points as the last half started, the count being 21-14.

In the final canto the rangy and versatile Ashvillers went to town ringing in 11 points against six for their foes.

Defense Turns Trick

The defense played by the Broncos was praised by many as outstanding. Very few close in shots were pegged by the Bulldogs, Kirk being the only man able to get away from his man long enough to hit the hoop with any regularity. Only two buckets were scored by New Holland's offensive trio, the center and forwards.

The Pickaway-Scioto contest was nip and tuck from start to finish with both teams playing brilliant ball. The Pickaway fast break was the deciding feature of the game, tiny Johnny Anderson breaking away time after time to take the ball past the Scioto defense for a pot shot. It was his ability to hit the hoop in the last period that kept Pickaway in front.

Scioto led through the first half, holding a 12-8 margin at the end of the first quarter and a 19-18 edge at halftime. Pickaway outplayed Scioto by a wide margin in the third quarter to hold a 29-23 advantage as the final period started. The teams were tied at 30 points each midway through the

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

At New York—Lou Ambers, 135½, former lightweight champion, Herkimer, N. Y., scored technical knockout over Baby Arizmendi, 136, California (11).

WOOLFORD FARM ENTRY FAVORED IN MAJOR RACE

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Feb. 25.—The Woolford Farm's Technician, accompanied by Inscocida, queen of last year's two-year-olds, is favored to lead home the field in the renewal of the $20,000 Flamingo stakes, feature of the Hialeah card today.

Technician won his last start in handy fashion over the same distance, a mile and a furlong, and, in doing so, defeated many of his rivals in today's event.

Volitant, the display colt owned by George H. Bull and John A. Morris, Saratoga Racing association officials, looms as Technician's main threat. Though Volitant made a poor showing in his debut last week, he has worked in a marvelous manner since that outing.

Timeful is another of the formidables and should collect part of the rich purse. His recent showing when he won a mile and furlong event by five lengths is indicative of his form.

The Calumet Farm's Easy Mon defeated Volitant by three lengths at this track and, if this effort was not just a flash in the pan, he may be the one to spring the upset.

In the final canto the rangy and versatile Ashvillers went to town ringing in 11 points against six for their foes.

Giants' Big "If"—Hub's Arm

BIG "if" in the Spring training size-up of several baseball clubs, including the New York Giants, are the hurling arms of star pitchers. Here's the Giants' "if", Carl Hubbell's left arm. Hub lost some of his effectiveness last season when his arm went dead. An operation was performed in the fall. The Giant star is shown at Hot Springs.

Many Question Marks Found On Giant Team

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Because they may stumble all the way down into the second division or soar to the National league pennant, one of the more intriguing baseball clubs of next season will be the New York Giants, who will attempt to regain the circuit championship they held in 1936 and 1937 after languishing for a year down in third place.

They are going to be interesting for more reasons than that, too. For another thing, Manager Memphis Bill Terry may be forced to wind up with a baseball innovation which for the sake of brevity we can call the eight-man defense.

In other words, he may not have a second baseman. On second thought, it is possible that he won't even have a first baseman and will resort finally to a seven-man defense, which would virtually assure him of a rousing seventh place finish. I would say eighth place except for the fact that the Philadelphia Phillies can be depended on for a stubborn and successful fight to remain in the cellar.

The Giants' predicament centers largely around the possibility that they again will be without the services of Burgess Whitehead, the Phi Beta Kappa second baseman from down in Carolina who starred on the Club's last two pennant-winning nines then was lost last season because of a nervous breakdown. They say he probably will be all right, but if he isn't then what?

Have None at All
The answer is that the Giants will make great and gallant progress to the rear, aided and abetted by Alex Kampouris or Lou Chiozza at second base, which is to say they will have virtually no second baseman at all, comparing them with Whitehead.

That Terry is concerned about second base seems to be indicated by his maneuver of Thursday, when he purchased Rookie Albans Glossop from Cincinnati. This doesn't mean that Glossop is going to be used at second base at once by the Giants, but it ought to mean that they are loading up with reinforcements for that position, looking ahead to the chance that they won't have Whitehead any more and that Glossop will develop.

As for first base, the Giants have Zeke Bonura, who was waived out of the American league a few months ago when the Giants bought him. Advice from the Giants' current base at Hot Springs, Ark., runs to the general effect that Terry is dissatisfied with the big slugger's fielding, which makes it absolutely unanimous. Terry now is trying to teach Bonura to field, which is equivalent to teaching an old dog to sing tenor.

We also learn from dispatches that Terry is trying to change outfielder Frank Demaree's batting stance, that he is wondering about Outfielder Mel Ott's broken finger and eager to find out whether Carl Hubbell and Hal Schumacher will be able to pitch again following operations on their arms.

Foreign Minister Hachita Arita notes a tendency in Japan toward "a drastic attitude urging frank proclamation that a state of war exists." This would be a great revelation to the Chinese, who probably have been accepting the invaders as a boisterous crowd of vacationers.

The ancient Egyptians used veneers for inlay in their furniture making.

By VICTOR H. RIES,
O. S. U. floriculturist

QUESTION: How thick and how often may peat moss be applied to a lawn? Will a many-spoked tamper which makes little holes in the lawn assist in watering, fertilizing and ventilating the same?

ANSWER: You will find it advantageous to apply a quarter-inch layer of peat moss at least once a year and even twice a year, early Spring and early Fall, to your lawn. I see no advantage whatsoever in using a spiked tamper, although formerly it was thought they were beneficial in seeding. May I suggest you ask your county agricultural agent for a copy of our bulletin on lawns.

QUESTION: Are the roots of the pussy willow and weeping willow injurious to building foundations or water pipes if they are growing near them?

ANSWER: I do not believe you will ever have any trouble from the pussy willow since it is not sufficiently vigorous, but any willow tree located near drains or sewers may penetrate them and develop a large number of roots inside. I do not see that you have anything to fear, however, with your house foundation.

QUESTION: Will you please tell me why my African violets do not bloom? They grow very well and are apparently healthy. I raised them from a leaf and although they are two years old and I water them from the bottom every day, they still do not bloom.

ANSWER: The African violet should not be potted in too large a pot. The more roots there are in the pot the more likely they are to bloom. They may be kept in a north window or any other window where they do not receive too much sunlight during the more sunny seasons of the year.

QUESTION: Will you please tell me how to take care of my night-blooming cereus so that it will bloom?

ANSWER: I find that many people feel that all cactus should be kept so dry that they barely exist. As long as you do not over-water cactus, in most instances they will give much better growth. The Christmas cactus and the night-blooming cereus, provided they are watered regularly.

QUESTION: I am in need of about 100 evergreens from three to six feet tall. I understand that your department will furnish them free if they are for my own use.

ANSWER: I am afraid you have been misinformed in regard to being able to obtain free evergreens or other plants from the Ohio State University or from any other state department. If you will stop and think, I believe you will realize that it would be impossible for the state to furnish this sort of material. In your case from $100 to $300 worth of evergreens should not be expected to be furnished by the state any more than you would expect it to furnish you a new set of tires for the automobile or a new suit of clothes.

QUESTION: We wish to plant a hedge along our drive. There is about six feet of ground between the edge of the concrete and the line. What tall, rapid-growing shrub that is not too broad can you recommend for this space?

ANSWER: I believe one of the best plants you could use for this purpose would be the pussy willow, especially if you will cut it down to the ground every two or three years to keep new growth coming up from the base. This will serve as a control for borers. Two other shrubs that might be used is the

Begonia evansiana, if planted in a soil made up of at least half leaf mold or peat moss and planted in the shade with a few inches of leaves over the surface, withstands temperatures down to 15 or 20 degrees below zero. If given six or eight inches of leaves, I am sure they would be hardy under any condition anywhere in the state.

WOOLFORD FARM ENTRY FAVORED IN MAJOR RACE

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Feb. 25—The Woolford Farm's Technician, accompanied by Inscocia, queen of last year's two-year-olds, is favored to lead home the race in the renewal of the $20,000 Flamingo stakes, feature of the Hialeah card today.

Technician won his last start in handy fashion over the same distance, a mile and a furlong, and, in doing so, defeated many of his rivals in today's event.

Volitant, the display colt owned by George H. Bull and John A. Morris, Saratoga Racing association officials, looms as Technician's main threat. Though Volitant made a poor showing in his debut last week, he has worked in a marvelous manner since that outing.

Timeful is another of the formidables and should collect part of the rich purse. His recent showing when he won a mile and furlong event by five lengths is indicative of his form.

The Calumet Farm's Easy Mon defeated Volitant by three lengths at this track and, if this effort was not just a flash in the pan, he may be the one to spring the upset.

In the final count the rangy and versatile Ashvillers went to town ringing in 11 points against six for their foes.

The defense played by the Broncos was praised by many as outstanding. Very few close in shots were pegged by the Bulldogs, Kirk being the only man able to get away from his man long enough to hit the hoop with any regularity. Only two buckets were scored by New Holland's offensive trio, the center and forwards.

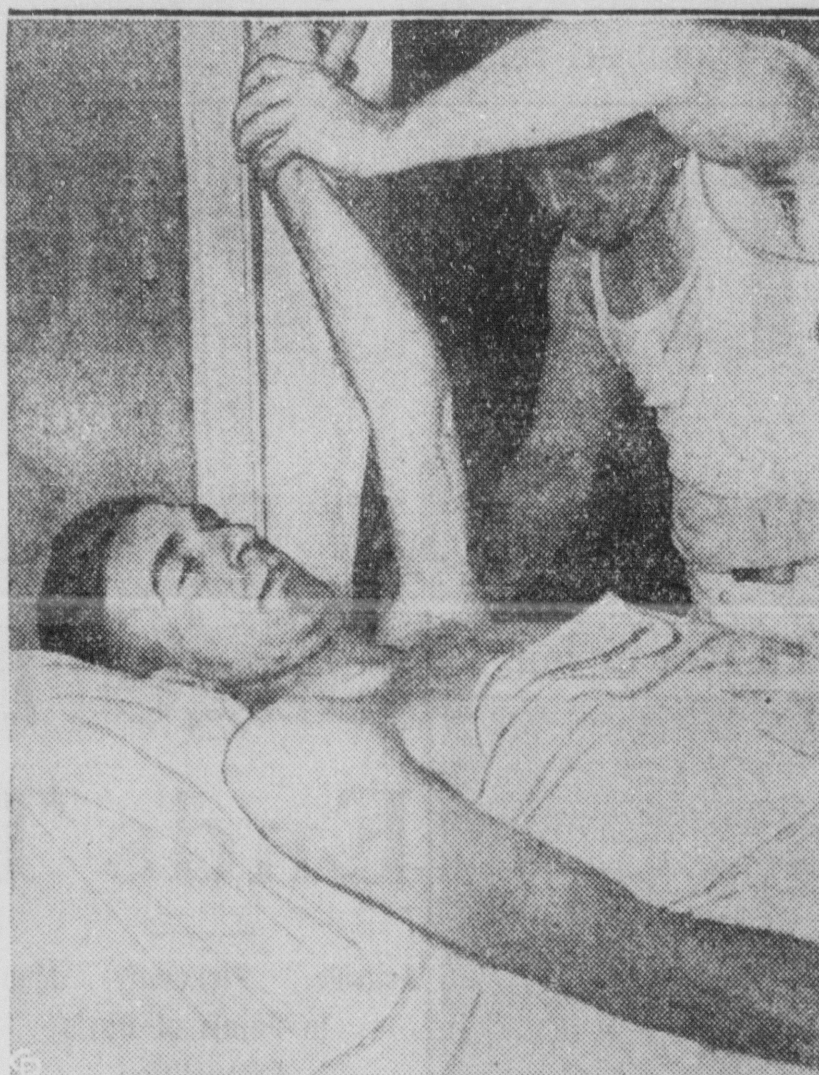

The Pickaway-Scioto contest was nip and tuck from start to finish with both teams playing brilliant ball. The Pickaway fast break was the deciding feature of the game, tiny Johnny Anderson breaking away time after time to take the ball past the Scioto defense for a pot shot. It was his ability to hit the hoop in the last period that kept Pickaway in front.

Scioto led through the first half, holding a 12-8 margin at the end of the first quarter and a 19-18 edge at halftime. Pickaway outplayed Scioto by a wide margin in the third quarter to hold a 29-23 advantage as the final period started. The teams were tied at 30 points each midway through the

BIG "If" in the Spring training size-up of several baseball clubs, including the New York Giants, are the hurling arms of star pitchers. Here's the Giants' "If," Carl Hubbell's left arm. Hub lost some of his effectiveness last season when his arm went dead. An operation was performed in the fall. The Giant star is shown at Hot Springs.

Many Question Marks Found On Giant Team

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—Because they may stumble all the way down into the second division or soar to the National league pennant, one of the more intriguing baseball clubs of next season will be the New York Giants, who will attempt to regain the circuit championship they held in 1936 and 1937 after languishing for a year down in third place.

They are going to be interesting for more reasons than that, too. For another thing, Manager Memphis Bill Terry may be forced to wind up with a baseball innovation which for the sake of brevity we can call the eight-man defense.

In other words, he may not have a second baseman. On second thought, it is possible that he won't even have a first baseman and will resort finally to a seven-man defense, which would virtually assure him of a rousing seventh place finish. I would say eighth place except for the fact that the Philadelphia Phillies can be depended on for a stubborn and successful fight to remain in the cellar.

The Giants' predicament centers largely around the possibility that they again will be without the services of Burgess Whitehead, the Phi Beta Kappa second baseman from down in Carolina who starred on the Club's last two pennant-winning nines then was lost last season because of a nervous breakdown. They say he probably will be all right, but if he isn't then what?

Have None at All
The answer is that the Giants will make great and gallant progress to the rear, aided and abetted by Alex Kampouris or Lou Chiozza at second base, which is to say they will have virtually no second baseman at all, comparing them with Whitehead.

That Terry is concerned about second base seems to be indicated by his maneuver of Thursday, when he purchased Rookie Albans Glossop from Cincinnati. This doesn't mean that Glossop is going to be used at second base at once by the Giants, but it ought to mean that they are loading up with reinforcements for that position, looking ahead to the chance that they won't have Whitehead any more and that Glossop will develop.

As for first base, the Giants have Zeke Bonura, who was waived out of the American league a few months ago when the Giants bought him. Advice from the Giants' current base at Hot Springs, Ark., runs to the general effect that Terry is dissatisfied with the big slugger's fielding, which makes it absolutely unanimous. Terry now is trying to teach Bonura to field, which is equivalent to teaching an old dog to sing tenor.

We also learn from dispatches that Terry is trying to change outfielder Frank Demaree's batting stance, that he is wondering about Outfielder Mel Ott's broken finger and eager to find out whether Carl Hubbell and Hal Schumacher will be able to pitch again following operations on their arms.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES,
O. S. U. floriculturist

QUESTION: How thick and how often may peat moss be applied to a lawn? Will a many-spoked tamper which makes little holes in the lawn assist in watering, fertilizing and ventilating the same?

ANSWER: You will find it advantageous to apply a quarter-inch layer of peat moss at least once a year and even twice a year, early Spring and early Fall, to your lawn. I see no advantage whatsoever in using a spiked tamper, although formerly it was thought they were beneficial in seeding. May I suggest you ask your county agricultural agent for a copy of our bulletin on lawns.

QUESTION: Are the roots of the pussy willow and weeping willow injurious to building foundations or water pipes if they are growing near them?

ANSWER: I do not believe you will ever have any trouble from the pussy willow since it is not sufficiently vigorous, but any willow tree located near drains or sewers may penetrate them and develop a large number of roots inside. I do not see that you have anything to fear, however, with your house foundation.

QUESTION: Will you please tell me why my African violets do not bloom? They grow very well and are apparently healthy. I raised them from a leaf and although they are two years old and I water them from the bottom every day, they still do not bloom.

ANSWER: The African violet should not be potted in too large a pot. The more roots there are in the pot the more likely they are to bloom. They may be kept in a north window or any other window where they do not receive too much sunlight during the more sunny seasons of the year.

QUESTION: Will you please tell me how to take care of my night-blooming cereus so that it will bloom?

ANSWER: I find that many people feel that all cactus should be kept so dry that they barely exist. As long as you do not over-water cactus, in most instances they will give much better growth. The Christmas cactus and the night-blooming cereus, provided they are not over-watered, will bloom better if watered regularly.

QUESTION: I am in need of about 100 evergreens from three to six feet tall. I understand that your department will furnish them free if they are for my own use.

ANSWER: I am afraid you have been misinformed in regard to being able to obtain free evergreens or other plants from the Ohio State University or from any other state department. If you will stop and think, I believe you will realize that it would be impossible for the state to furnish this sort of material. In your case from $100 to $300 worth of evergreens should not be expected to be furnished by the state any more than you would expect it to furnish you a new set of tires for the automobile or a new suit of clothes.

QUESTION: We wish to plant a hedge along our drive. There is about six feet of ground between the edge of the concrete and the line. What tall, rapid-growing shrub that is not too broad can you recommend for this space?

ANSWER: I believe one of the best plants you could use for this purpose would be the pussy willow, especially if you will cut it down to the ground every two or three years to keep new growth coming up from the base. This will serve as a control for borers. Two other shrubs that might be used is the

Begonia evansiana, if planted in a soil made up of at least half leaf mold or peat moss and planted in the shade with a few inches of leaves over the surface, withstands temperatures down to 15 or 20 degrees below zero. If given six or eight inches of leaves, I am sure they would be hardy under any condition anywhere in the state.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH PARTICIPATES IN STATEWIDE FINANCIAL CAMPAIGN

ABOUT THE CHURCH

When Jesus was on earth, he gathered about him a group of Disciples, who went with Him on His travels. They assisted Him whenever they could, but His main purpose in having them go with Him was to train them in the work of His kingdom so that they might be able to carry it on after His death and resurrection. This was the beginning of Christ's church.

The church of Christ today is made up of Christian people who are banded together for the purpose of carrying on Christ's work. Its members differ greatly in many ways, but they are bound together by Christian love and a common purpose. The church baptizes and trains children, it calls upon all men to believe in God and to worship Him, it teaches His word, administers the sacraments, helps the needy, and comforts the sorrowing. Every Christian needs the training, the companionships, the helpfulness and the watchful care of the church. Each of us should have a 'Church Home.'

It is the duty of all who love the Lord Jesus to join His church. Temperance societies are organized to promote the temperance cause, literary societies to create a love for literature, scientific societies to advance science. The church is Christ's society to promote Christianity.

In a free country like the United States there are a number of branches of the church, called denominations. Some emphasize ritual, like the Protestant Episcopal church; some doctrine, like the Lutheran church; some stress certain forms of baptism like the Baptist church. While these denominations differ in such minor matters, they are all one in their purpose to spread the love of Christ and to promote His kingdom. The Roman Catholic church, with which Protestantism differs at so many points, has much in common with the other Christian churches.

Who founded the church? Jesus founded the Church by calling and training His disciples. When and where did the Christian church begin its work? At Jerusalem on the day of Pentecost (Acts 2).

Who comprise the Church of God on earth? The Church of God is composed of Christian believers who are banded together to worship God and to carry on His work.

What is the special work of the church? To proclaim the gospel, to teach Christian truth, to lead men to the Saviour, and to provide for public worship.

What other equally important task has the church? The task of the church is to promote the spirit of brotherhood among men, to combat sin and evil in every form, to carry on needed works of mercy and to apply the teachings of Jesus to daily life.

What is meant by the "Holy Catholic Church" in the Apostles' creed? The one universal Church of Christ, which includes all the separate branches, or denominations, of Christian believers.

Who is now the head of the church? Jesus Christ is the Head of the Church, and He will always be its true leader (Colossians 1:18).

Is it our duty to belong to the church? It is the sacred duty of everyone to be an active member of the Church.

EVERY MEMBER URGED TO AID IN OHIO DRIVE

Money To Be Sought For Church Support And Other Services

Circleville's Presbyterian church will join with the 600 Presbyterian churches of Ohio in a financial campaign for $3,250,000 for local church support and for the denominational service program around the world.

This will be conducted through the every member canvass plan and will be under the leadership of canvass directors and committees in the fourteen Presbyteries of the state and in each local church.

Contribution of the Circleville church to the state campaign will be in connection with the every member canvass to be conducted by the board of trustees and elders. J. O. Eagleson, chairman of the board, is in charge of the canvass to be made during the latter part of March. Robert Colville is church secretary and secretary of the canvass.

The total denominational budget in Ohio for salaries, maintenance, replacements and running expenses is $2,750,000, while the apportionment of the 600 churches for the denominational missionary work around the world is close to $500,000. These amounts are distributed to the Presbyteries and local churches on the basis of membership and financial ability. They include a part of the Synod's program of financial advance under the Opportunity Year schedule of objectives.

Series Followed

This campaign follows a series of rallies in the fourteen Presbyteries and in a number of local churches. These conferences, which brought to the state denominational leaders from New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, were under the direction of Synod's General Presbyterian Service committee of which Dr. Hugh Ivan Evans, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, Dayton is chairman. These visiting clergymen and local speakers not only explained the missionary opportunities at home and abroad, but they discussed the latest methods used throughout the nation in similar financial campaigns. Local committees are at work in most of the 600 churches completing preparations for the canvass which will be conducted March 5 to 12.

Associated with Dr. Evans are Dr. Howard D. Borley, Zanesville, moderator of the Ohio Presbyterian Synod and Dr. Benjamin V. Andrews, Cleveland, chairman of Synod's committee on Christian education. These ministers, together with the six general Presbyteries, have been cooperating with committees in each of the fourteen Presbyteries and with local pastors and officers in a movement for increased church attendance, additional members, enlarged Sunday schools and augmented contributions. Reports coming into the Columbus headquarters show marked gains in these goals and increased interest and participation as the program nears its close at Easter.

Committee Named

The benevolence budget is apportioned to the fourteen Presbyteries by the Synod's committee on United Promotion of which Dr. Homer G. McMillen, Kenton, is chairman, and is redistributed to local churches by similar committees in each of the Presbyteries. With Dr. McCillen on the state committee are Dr. Harry W. Barr, Urbana; Elder H. S. Mulford, Cincinnati; Dr. Hugh I. Evans, Dayton, and Dr. Benjamin V. Andrews, Cleveland. Ministers representing the Presbyteries on this state committee include Dr. E. B. Townsend, Marietta; J. C. McCoy, Lebanon; E. W. Pocock, Cleveland Heights; Robert R. Reed, Columbus; J. Stan Harker, Hamilton; John H. Lamy, Van Wert; Frank O. Leonard, Poland; H. G. Finney, Mt. Gil-ead; H. G. Vorseheim, Portsmouth; R. E. Conrad, Freeport; William A. Rex, Defiance; G. W. Coldwell, Orrville, and R. M. Kiskaddon, Coshocton. Dr. Arthur H. Limouze and Dr. Herman C. Weber, New York, representing the denominations General Council, are cooperating with state leaders in the opportunity year program, and in the financial campaign.

The United States flag is popularly referred to as the "red, white and blue." The French flag has the same colors but is known as the "Blue, white and red."

The Republic of Panama is only 35 years old, and is about the size of the state of Maine.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH PARTICIPATES IN STATEWIDE FINANCIAL CAMPAIGN

ABOUT THE CHURCH

When Jesus was on earth, he gathered about him a group of Disciples, who went with Him on His travels. They assisted Him whenever they could, but His main purpose in having them go with Him was to train them in the work of His kingdom so that they might be able to carry it on after His death and resurrection. This was the beginning of Christ's church.

The church of Christ today is made up of Christian people who are banded together for the purpose of carrying on Christ's work. Its members differ greatly in many ways, but they are bound together by Christian love and a common purpose. The church baptizes and trains children, it calls upon all men to believe in God and to worship Him, it teaches His word, administers the sacraments, helps the needy, and comforts the sorrowing. Every Christian needs the training, the companionships, the helpfulness and the watchful care of the church. Each of us should have a "Church Home."

It is the duty of all who love the Lord Jesus to join His church. Temperance societies are organized to promote the temperance cause, literary societies to create a love for literature, scientific societies to advance science. The church is Christ's society to promote Christianity.

In a free country like the United States there are a number of branches of the church, called denominations. Some emphasize ritual, like the Protestant Episcopal church; some doctrine, like the Lutheran church; some stress certain forms of baptism like the Baptist church. While these denominations differ in such minor matters, they are all one in their purpose to spread the love of Christ and to promote His kingdom. The Roman Catholic church, with which Protestantism differs at so many points, has much in common with the other Christian churches.

Who founded the church? Jesus founded the Church by calling and training His disciples. When and where did the Christian church begin its work? At Jerusalem on the day of Pentecost (Acts 2).

Who comprise the Church of God on earth? The Church of God is composed of Christian believers who are banded together to worship God and to carry on His work.

What is the special work of the church? To proclaim the gospel, to teach Christian truth, to lead men to the Saviour, and to provide for public worship.

What other equally important task has the church? The task of the church is to promote the spirit of brotherhood among men, to combat sin and evil in every form, to carry on needed works of mercy and to apply the teachings of Jesus to daily life.

What is meant by the "Holy Catholic Church" in the Apostles' creed?

The one universal Church of Christ, which includes all the separate branches, or denominations, of Christian believers.

Who is now the head of the church? Jesus Christ is the Head of the Church, and He will always be its true leader (Colossians 1:18).

Is it our duty to belong to the church?

It is the sacred duty of everyone to be an active member of the Church.

EVERY MEMBER URGED TO AID IN OHIO DRIVE

Money To Be Sought For Church Support And Other Services

Circleville's Presbyterian church will join with the 600 Presbyterian churches of Ohio in a financial campaign for $3,250,000 for local church support and for the denominational service program around the world.

This will be conducted through the every member canvass plan and will be under the leadership of canvass directors and committees in the fourteen Presbyteries of the state and in each local church.

Contribution of the Circleville church to the state campaign will be in connection with the every member canvass to be conducted by the board of trustees and elders. J. O. Eagleson, chairman of the board, is in charge of the canvass to be made during the latter part of March. Robert Colville is church secretary and secretary of the canvass.

The total denominational budget in Ohio for salaries, maintenance, replacements and running expenses is $2,750,000, while the apportionment of the 600 churches for the denominational missionary work around the world is close to $500,000. These amounts are distributed to the Presbyteries and local churches on the basis of membership and financial ability. They include a part of the Synod's program of financial advance under the Opportunity Year schedule of objectives.

Series Followed

This campaign follows a series of rallies in the fourteen Presbyteries and in a number of local churches. These conferences, which brought to the state denominational leaders from New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, were under the direction of Synod's General Presbyter Service committee of which Dr. Hugh Evans, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, Dayton is chairman. These visiting clergymen and local speakers not only explained the missionary opportunities at home and abroad, but they discussed the latest methods used throughout the nation in similar financial campaigns. Local committees are at work in most of the 600 churches completing preparations for the canvass which will be conducted March 5 to 12.

Associated with Dr. Evans are Dr. Howard D. Borley, Zanesville, moderator of the Ohio Presbyterian Synod and Dr. Benjamin V. Andrews, Cleveland, chairman of Synod's committee on Christian education. These ministers, together with the six general Presbyteries, have been cooperating with committees in each of the fourteen Presbyteries and with local pastors and officers in a movement for increased church attendance, additional members, enlarged Sunday schools and augmented contributions. Reports coming into the Columbus headquarters show marked gains in these goals and increasing interest and participation as the program nears its close at Easter.

Committee Named

The benevolence budget is apportioned to the fourteen Presbyteries by the Synod's committee on United Promotion of which Dr. Homer G. McMillen, Kenton, is chairman, and is redistributed to local churches by similar committees in each of the Presbyteries. With Dr. McCillen on the state committee are Dr. Harry W. Barr, Urbana; Elder H. S. Mulford, Cincinnati; Dr. Hugh I. Evans, Dayton, and Dr. Benjamin V. Andrews, Cleveland. Ministers representing the Presbyteries on this state committee include Dr. E. B. Townsend, Marietta; J. C. McCoy, Lebanon; E. W. Pocock, Cleveland Heights; Robert R. Reed, Columbus; J. Stan Harker, Hamilton; John H. Lamy, Van Wert; Frank O. Leonard, Poland; H. G. Finney, Mt. Gil-ead; H. G. Vorshelm, Portsmouth; R. E. Conrad, Freeport; William A. Rex, Defiance; G. W. Coldwell, Orrville, and R. M. Kiskaddon, Coshocton. Dr. Arthur H. Limouze and Dr. Herman C. Weber, New York, representing the denominations General Council, are cooperating with state leaders in the opportunity year program, and in the financial campaign.

The United States flag is popularly referred to as the "red, white and blue." The French flag has the same colors but is known as the "Blue, white and red."

Peter in Samaria

Peter visits Samaria and by the laying on of hands the Holy Ghost descends upon his converts. Simon, a magician, sees him and offers money if Peter will show him how to give this power.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Acts 8:4-25

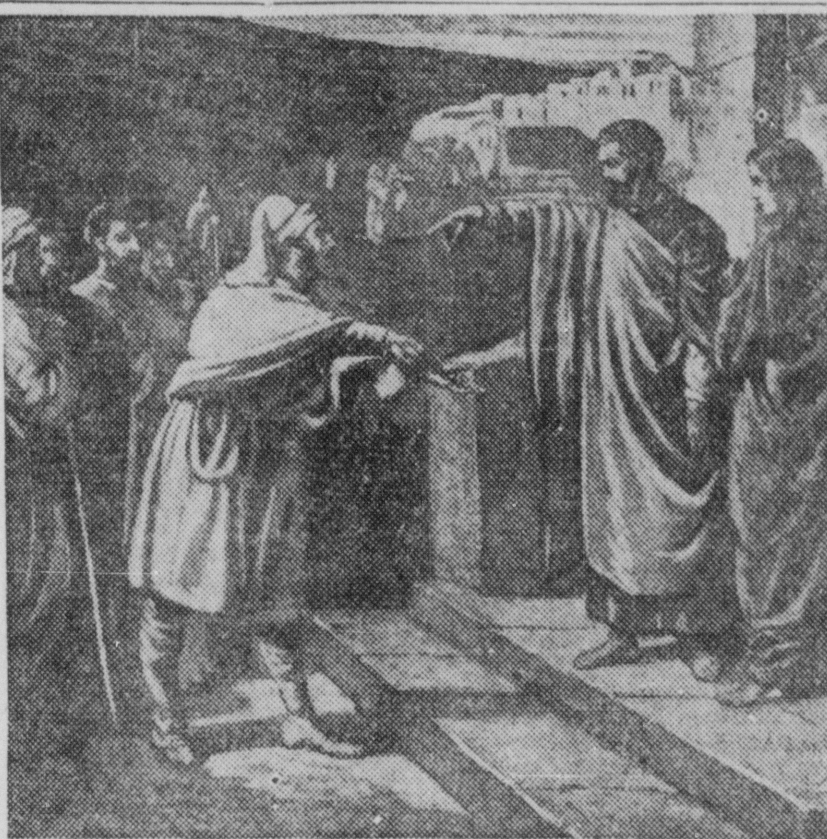

Now we go back to the time when Jesus was on earth, when He, too, preached to Samaritans and converted them to Christianity after His talk to the woman at the well.

Later He went to Jerusalem, and finding men selling and bargaining in the temple, He drove them out with a scourge, saying, "Make not My Father's house an house of merchandise."

MECHANIZED FARMS
FARMERS in general, after a brief spell of comparative prosperity, are in trouble again. A large part of it, according to Hugh Johnson, who used to make agricultural machinery, is the extent to which farms have gone mechanical. Writing from Kansas City, he confesses that he hardly recognizes farm equipment now.
"The horse-drawn part of it is reduced to almost nothing," he says. "Nearly all the tools are tractor tools. That means one man can take care of the same land that it took two or three men to till ten years ago."

"Technological unemployment has already arrived in agriculture. While that makes lower costs of production, it contributes nothing to contentment in these great open spaces."
It is now so easy to produce crops that hired hands are out of work, and small farms can't compete with big mechanized farms. Big surpluses accumulate and crop prices sink. And because farmers are impoverished, and because general business doesn't prosper when farmers are not prosperous, straight farm subsidies are proposed.

ARCTIC COOPERATION
THE scientists aboard that Soviet icebreaker drifting around in the Arctic Sea near the North Pole report an unexpected "wealth of living organisms" in the northernmost waters. They have found microscopic animal and vegetable life, which serves as food for higher life, in considerable abundance both on the surface and at depths of 10,000 feet. They observed a mother polar bear with two cubs as far north as the eighty-fifth parallel.

All this is interesting. Peter Freuchen, the Danish explorer who has written much about that northern region, remarks casually in a current magazine article that he expects the Arctic to be frequented by tourists before long. It has become so easy to get there, in comparison with the long and laborious travel, mostly on foot, of earlier days.

These Russian observations suggest that there will be something to see besides snow, ice and cold water. The Russians, according to Freuchen, are doing the best Arctic research of the present time. Furthermore, exploration is one of the few truly international activities. All explorers make their findings public at once and share them with all who are interested. Every exploring party has the experience and information of preceding groups to help it.

It is a pity that sort of cooperation is not applied universally.

William Allen White summons the Republican Party to "rebirth" and the Democratic Party to "repentance." And if they refuse, who'll take over?

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

PAGES from the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:
Up at the usual hour and soon at the plant to learn that flu finally has struck us. One printer under care of a doctor and running a high temperature, two more fugitives from sick beds. Strange beings, newspapermen. They never admit they are sick until a doctor insists on the fact. Maybe that is why, if they remain in the profession that they seldom live on borrowed time.

Out and over the paves, finding the village extremely quiet in the early morning. Planned a hurried trip to Columbus, but abandoned the idea after talking to a bus driver who said the pike was slick and dangerous. Chatted with Ed Mason, who insists that he enjoys shoveling snow, and passed the time of day with Charles May. Frank Lynch and Bob Brehmer dropped in to play a prank and got away with it and Fred Wittich came to inspect some new equipment.

Pondered over an article in the Satevepost to the effect that the long nose of Uncle Sam is likely to cause a war in Europe and mix us up in the strife. Seems to me that we are doing a lot of busybody prying into the affairs of others. If England and France wish to pass the mantle of power to Germany what business is that of ours? None, I'd say, but then no one asked me, so, maybe, I'd better not say it.

Charles Rittinger, the master farmer, dropped in at the office and seemed optimistic enough. Farmers all are like that when the planting season is near at hand. They may do a lot of talking about the past, but all the time they are talking they are working today and thinking of tomorrow. They are kicked around a lot by fate, but they never quit trying and at heart are never anything except optimists. Conditions being such as they are the farmer has to be an optimist.

Dropped in on John Ryan to note rapid advance in the improvement of his drugstore. It will be a beautiful establishment when finished and the odor of paint has given away to the odor of drugs once more. Chatted with Sam Rader, who left the road with his automobile and ended up with the discovery that he was more damaged than his car. Dropped in at the Coffee Club and learned that four members had matched before my arrival and the decision was that the check was mine. Took it after some unavailing argument, but immediately declared closed house.
Suddenly remembered that Wednesday was my birthday. Years ago did look forward to them. Now try my best to forget them. Pete Neff's was the same day and Glen Geb's the very next. And all of us very quiet about it all.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

BRASS RING TO NAVY AIR PILOTS

WASHINGTON — With U. S. aviation about to increase to all-time highs, a serious situation exists in naval aviation which has been taken to the President himself, and which is causing considerable worry in naval and congressional circles. This situation is the number of fatalities among naval fliers during the past year. A total of 55 fliers were killed in 1938 at San Diego alone.

This has created a virtual "reign of terror" among the wives of many aviators, who believe that most of the deaths were due to fatigue from too many hours in the air, and to the absence of mechanical safeguards.

Probably the basic reason for these fatalities is that the Navy always has been bossed by men skilled in navigating surface boats, heavy ships which can reduce speed and mark time until danger passes. Handling a modern warplane which requires decisions in split seconds is entirely different.

CASTE SYSTEM

Today there has grown up in naval aviation three groups of personnel which many regard as a caste system. They are:

- (1) Regular naval officers who graduate from Annapolis, later train at the Navy's air school, famed Pensacola. These are the Navy's blue-bloods, usually strong on tradition and the trimmings of militarism.
- (2) Enlisted men, super-types of sailors who are promoted through sheer ability. Highest they can rise, however, is to chief aviation pilot. They never can attain the higher ranks of Annapolis graduates. These men are the leathernecks of the air.
- (3) Aviation cadets. These are graduates of colleges, briefly trained at Pensacola, who serve for four years with the Navy. At the end of four years' service they are compelled to retire. If they want to secure officer's rank and climb higher on the promotion ladder, they have to go back to Annapolis and get steeped in the trimmings of militarism.

Men in these three groups do much the same work, share the same risks, nevertheless the three groups get different pay and different social treatment. Between the enlisted men and the Annapolis graduates there is a wide chasm which the men resent deeply.

NAVAL PURGE

Resentment is particularly keen because some of the Navy's non-Annapolis officers are now being purged by passing them over for promotion, thus automatically retiring them.

Explanation of Navy Department executives is that most of these men were World War pilots trained to pilot a plane but unskilled at anything else, such as commanding a battleship. Therefore, when they reach the dangerous age—which is 40 for pilots—they cannot be put back on the bridge of a warship or in command of a shore station.

Furthermore, the law requires that once an officer fails of promotion, he must be automatically retired and the Navy Department has no other alternative.

In this, the explanation of Navy higher-ups is correct. The fault is in the law rather than in its administration.

Common Injuries To Knee Recorded

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
KNEE INJURIES which show nothing under the X-ray frequently occur as a complicated puzzle. A vague diagnosis of water on the knee is made. This diagnosis satisfies the patient better than it does the physician. Perhaps that is why it is made so often.
A pair of crutches and an elastic knee cap are prescribed treatment, and recovery is left in the hands of time. The acute symptoms subside, and persistent disability, which the subject accepts as a "trick knee," is often the result.
The knee is a very complicated joint and an injury may produce

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

any one or a combination of a number of injuries. The ligaments of the knee on the side, inside and outside may be strained. There are two ligaments inside the knee joint which cross each other and these may be strained or ruptured by injury.

Common Disorder
Commonest of all is perhaps the dislocation of one of the moon-shaped cartilages in the knee joint. These cartilages are thin blades of tissue which are very loosely connected with the bone and may become pulled off, get into the knee joint and float around. They frequently cause what is known as "locked knee." Football players often suffer this injury. In most cases, if left alone, the inflammation subsides and, except for an occasional locking, which is what is called a "trick knee," they give no trouble. They can be removed easily by a simple surgical operation, if they give enough trouble to be serious.

Inflammation of the bursae around the knee is very common. As there are 14 bursae in the region of the knee, it is easy to see that they present a complicated problem. The cause is the inflammation of the bursa on top of the knee cap, which is nowdays, when very few housemaids get down on their knees to scrub floors, it is quite as common

CONTRACT BRIDGE

FEAR HOT POTATOES
DURING THE DAYS of auction, the expression "hot potato" was applied to those hands which are such terrible misfits that whichever side gets the contract is sure to be burnt. Good bidders always keep their eyes open to discern the danger that these deals extend. Not only are they careful to avoid the punishment that lurks in them, but they like to see the opponents burn their fingers.

the nearest to a fit the side could find, but even this was set three tricks.
South made a third-hand opener of 1-Diamond at one table. West bid 1-Heart, North doubled. East called 1-Spade, and South here bid 2-Diamonds. Taking this as a confession that the original bid was weak, North passed, and the side made exactly 2-Diamonds.
One pair got into 4-Diamonds in the East, for a set of five tricks, one West player was set at 2-Hearts not doubled, and one South made 2-Diamonds. Just why no North-South pair reached 3-No trump is hard to figure, for there are many sequences of sound bidding that could produce that contract. But nobody did. Perhaps it was due to a sort of jinx that seems to hover around these queer misfit deals which nearly everybody bids in a way different from everybody else.

Tomorrow's Problems

praise warming her heart. "This lake is an old hand of mine."

"I didn't think you could learn to swim like that in fresh water. Mean to tell me you've never been near the ocean?" He looked down at her, the water dripping from his wet hair, giving his lean face a curiously boyish look. Remembering suddenly the miles he had wandered from his home in far-off, almost mythical California, her brief moment of triumph vanished and she felt shy again.

They sat on the float for a long time, talking as they swayed to the gentle motion of the waves. Somehow the proximity of the water seemed to make him loquacious, and he told her fascinating tales of the many cities in which he had worked. Listening, Lona found herself wondering about him anew. Beyond the one mention of his sister that first night when he had been trying to re-assure her, he had never really told her anything about himself. He never talked, as she did, of his family, of his schooling, of his background. Until now she hadn't even connected him with the ocean.

"Tell me, what did you do before you started all this wandering?" she asked, idly, and was startled at the look that leaped into his eyes. It was as if she had hurt him, somehow.

"I guess I've always been a wanderer," he said, vaguely, and fell silent, staring out across the lake, all the brightness gone from his face. Dabbling her feet in the water, Lona watched him, troubled and wondering, wishing she could recall the words that had changed his mood.
They ate their lunch on a flat-topped rock to which Lona, proud of her knowledge of the place, led him. It was a queer lunch that set her laughing as she unpacked it. A man's choice. Thick sandwiches of hamburger from a corner stand, pickles in a paper carton, a whole pie, and a thermos bottle of steaming coffee. Lona giggled as she tried to fit her mouth over one of the huge sandwiches.

"I like 'em that way," Jim assured her, complacently. "A fellow can get a grip on these. Boy, there's been many a time when I'd have given my right eye for a hamburger like this!"

"They are good," Lona found herself devouring her hungrily. After the exhilaration of the water she was starved. And it was such fun to eat like this.

They had finished their coffee when she caught sight of a bathing party coming along the sands from the Allen cottage, and her heart jumped. Gertrude Allen was leading, and among the girls following her was another familiar face. Facing them, swift panic seized Lona. All the hurt of those last days in Bridgewater came rushing back;

MECHANIZED FARMS

FARMERS in general, after a brief spell of comparative prosperity, are in trouble again. A large part of it, according to Hugh Johnson, who used to make agricultural machinery, is the extent to which farms have gone mechanical. Writing from Kansas City, he confesses that he hardly recognizes farm equipment now.

"The horse-drawn part of it is reduced to almost nothing," he says. "Nearly all the tools are tractor tools. That means one man can take care of the same land that it took two or three men to till ten years ago.

"Technological unemployment has already arrived in agriculture. While that makes lower costs of production, it contributes nothing to contentment in these great open spaces."

It is now so easy to produce crops that hired hands are out of work, and small farms can't compete with big mechanized farms. Big surpluses accumulate and crop prices sink. And because farmers are impoverished, and because general business doesn't prosper when farmers are not prosperous, straight farm subsidies are proposed.

ARCTIC COOPERATION

THE scientists aboard that Soviet ice-breaker drifting around in the Arctic Sea near the North Pole report an unexpected "wealth of living organisms" in the northernmost waters. They have found microscopic animal and vegetable life, which serves as food for higher life, in considerable abundance both on the surface and at depths of 10,000 feet. They observed a mother polar bear with two cubs as far north as the eighty-fifth parallel.

All this is interesting. Peter Freuchen, the Danish explorer who has written much about that northern region, remarks casually in a current magazine article that he expects the Arctic to be frequented by tourists before long. It has become so easy to get there, in comparison with the long and laborious travel, mostly on foot, of earlier days.

These Russian observations suggest that there will be something to see besides snow, ice and cold water. The Russians, according to Freuchen, are doing the best Arctic research of the present time. Furthermore, exploration is one of the few truly international activities. All explorers make their findings public at once and share them with all who are interested. Every exploring party has the experience and information of preceding groups to help it.

It is a pity that sort of cooperation is not applied universally.

William Allen White summons the Republican Party to "rebirth" and the Democratic Party to "repentance." And if they refuse, who'll take over?

Up at the usual hour and soon at the plant to learn that flu finally has struck us. One printer under care of a doctor and running a high temperature, two more fugitives from sick beds. Strange beings, newspapermen. They never admit they are sick until a doctor insists on the fact. Maybe that is why, if they remain in the profession that they seldom live on borrowed time.

Out and over the paves, finding the ville extremely quiet in the early morning. Planned a hurried trip to Columbus, but abandoned the idea after talking to a bus driver who said the pike was slick and dangerous. Chatted with Ed Mason, who insists that he enjoys shoveling snow, and passed the time of day with Charles May. Frank Lynch and Bob Brehmer dropped in to play a prank and got away with it and Fred Wittich came to inspect some new equipment.

Pondered over an article in the Satevpost to the effect that the long nose of Uncle Sam is likely to cause a war in Europe and mix us up in the strife. Seems to me that we are doing a lot of busybody prying into the affairs of others. If England and France wish to pass the mantle of power to Germany what business is that of ours? None, I'd say, but then no one asked me, so, maybe, I'd better not say it.

Charles Rittinger, the master farmer, dropped in at the office and seemed optimistic enough. Farmers all are like that when the planting season is near at hand. They may do a lot of talking about the past, but all the time they are talking they are working today and thinking of tomorrow. They are kicked around a lot by fate, but they never quit trying and at heart are never anything except optimists. Conditions being such as they are the farmer has to be an optimist.

Dropped in on John Ryan to note rapid advance in the improvement of his drugstore. It will be a beautiful establishment when finished and the odor of paint has given away to the odor of drugs once more. Chatted with Sam Rader, who left the road with his automobile and ended up with the discovery that he was more damaged than his car. Dropped in at the Coffee Club and learned that four members had matched before my arrival and the decision was that the check was mine. Took it after some unavailing argument, but immediately declared closed house.

Suddenly remembered that Wednesday was my birthday. Years ago did look forward to them. Now try my best to forget them. Pete Neff's was the same day and Glen Geb's the very next. And all of us very quiet about it all.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BRASS RING TO NAVY AIR PILOTS

WASHINGTON — With U. S. aviation about to increase to all-time highs, a serious situation exists in naval aviation which has been taken to the President himself, and which is causing considerable worry in naval and congressional circles. This situation is the number of fatalities among naval fliers during the past year. A total of 55 fliers were killed in 1938 at San Diego alone.

This has created a virtual "reign of terror" among the wives of many aviators, who believe that most of the deaths were due to fatigue from too many hours in the air, and to the absence of mechanical safeguards.

Probably the basic reason for these fatalities is that the Navy always has been bossed by men skilled in navigating surface boats, heavy ships which can reduce speed and mark time until danger passes. Handling a modern warplane which requires decisions in split seconds is entirely different.

CASTE SYSTEM

Today there has grown up in naval aviation three groups of personnel which many regard as a caste system. They are:

- (1) Regular naval officers who graduate from Annapolis, later train at the Navy's air school, famed Pensacola. These are the Navy's blue-bloods, usually strong on tradition and the trimmings of militarism.
- (2) Enlisted men, super-types of sailors who are promoted through sheer ability. Highest they can rise, however, is to chief aviation pilot. They never can attain the higher ranks of Annapolis graduates. These men are the leathernecks of the air.
- (3) Aviation cadets. These are graduates of colleges, briefly trained at Pensacola, who serve for four years with the Navy. At the end of four years' service they are compelled to retire. If they want to secure officer's rank and climb higher on the promotion ladder, they have to go back to Annapolis and get steeped in the trimmings of militarism.

Men in these three groups do much the same work, share the same risks, nevertheless the three groups get different pay and different social treatment. Between the enlisted men and the Annapolis graduates there is a wide chasm which the men resent deeply.

NAVAL PURGE

Resentment is particularly keen because some of the Navy's non-Annapolis officers are now being purged by passing them over for promotion, thus automatically retiring them.

Explanation of Navy Department executives is that most of these men were World War pilots trained to pilot a plane but unskilled at anything else, such as commanding a battleship. Therefore, when they reach the dangerous age—which is 40 for pilots—they cannot be put back on the bridge of a warship or in command of a shore station.

Furthermore, the law requires that once an officer fails of promotion, he must be automatically retired and the Navy Department has no other alternative.

In this, the explanation of Navy higher-ups is correct. The fault is in the law rather than in its administration.

Common Injuries To Knee Recorded

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

KNEE INJURIES which show nothing under the X-ray frequently occur and are regarded by the physician as a complicated puzzle. A vague diagnosis of water on the knee is made. This diagnosis satisfies the patient better than it does the physician. Perhaps that is why it is made so often.

A pair of crutches and an elastic knee cap are prescribed treatment, and recovery is left in the hands of time. The acute symptoms subside, and persistent disability, which the subject accepts as a "trick knee," is too often the result.

The knee is a very complicated joint and an injury may produce questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

any one or a combination of a number of injuries. The ligaments of the knee on the side, inside and outside may be strained. There are two ligaments inside the knee joint which cross each other and thus may be strained or ruptured by injury.

Common Disorder

Commonest of all is perhaps the dislocation of one of the moon-shaped cartilages in the knee joint. These cartilages are thin blades of tissue which are very loosely connected with the bone and may become pulled off, get into the knee joint and float around. They frequently cause what is known as "locked knee." Football players often suffer this injury. In most cases, if left alone, the inflammation subsides and, except for an occasional locking, which is what is called a "trick knee," they give no trouble. They can be removed easily by a simple surgical operation, if they give enough trouble to be serious.

Inflammation of the bursae around the knee is very common. As there are 14 bursae in the region of the knee, it is easy to see that they present a complicated problem. The cause is the inflammation of the bursa on top of the knee cap, which is commonly called "housemaid's knee." Nowadays, when very few housemaids get down on their knees to scrub floors, it is quite as common to find it in bishops as it is in housemaids.

Baker's Cyst

Another bursa, in the back of the knee, is known when inflamed as Baker's cyst. It is found in occupations where a constant backward recurvature of the knee is maintained. These inflammations of the bursae around the knee subside under ordinary treatment by heat, rest, splinting, diathermy and light treatment with infra-red lamp.

Hemorrhage into the knee joint occurs very frequently in that rare disease, hemophilia. In fact, a hemophilic is usually known more by the fact that he has a stiff knee than by bleeding in any other part of the body.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

G. V.: "What is the trouble when you don't have the least desire or feel the least necessity of having a bowel movement?"

Answer: The treatment of chronic constipation is a complicated one, and is largely psychic. People who worry about it worry too much, and by so doing simply make the condition worse. In the case here described insensitiveness of the lower rectum appears to be a dominant cause. Perhaps a suppository used first thing on arising would be a good thing. Most patients with constipation simply do not eat enough, especially of fruit and vegetables.

W. D.: "Will you please give me a list of acid-forming foods?"

Answer:—The only acid-forming foods are the fats.

J. C.: "Will peanut butter be helpful in eliminating bile by way of the intestines? Also would mineral oil be helpful?"

Answer: Any fat will help to eliminate bile. Mineral oil does not act in this way.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

FEAR HOT POTATOES

DURING THE DAYS of auction, the expression "hot potato" was applied to those hands which are such terrible misfits that whichever side gets the contract is sure to be burnt. Good bidders always keep their eyes open to discern the danger that these deals extend. Not only are they careful to avoid the punishment that lurks in them, but they like to see the opponents burn their fingers.

the nearest to a fit the side could find, but even this was set three tricks.

South made a third-hand opener of 1-Diamond at one table. West bid 1-Heart, North doubled, East called 1-Spade, and South here bid 2-Diamonds. Taking this as a confession that the original bid was weak, North passed, and the side made exactly 2-Diamonds.

One pair got into 4-Diamonds in the East, for a set of five tricks, one West player was set at 2-Hearts not doubled, and one South made 3-Diamonds. Just why no North-South pair reached 3-No trump is hard to figure, for there are many sequences of sound bidding that could produce that contract. But nobody did. Perhaps it was due to a sort of jinx that seems to hover around these queer misfit deals which nearly everybody bids in a way different from everybody else.

CONVICT'S DAUGHTER

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

RUTH RAY KANE

READ THIS FIRST:
Disheartened because she can find no work, Lona Ackerman, whose father is serving a life sentence for murder, finds some consolation in telling her troubles to Jim Claridge, an acquaintance she has decided to trust. Aside from Claridge, she is alone in the world, jobless and broke. Jim gives Lona a lead for another job and she applies at the office of the Western Realities company. Lona likes her new work, sees more and more of Jim evenings. On Sunday they decide to go to a nearby lake for a picnic.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER ELEVEN
LONA LAUGHED as she climbed into the seat of the screaming green roadster Jim had borrowed for the picnic at Wichita lake. It was a ready laugh that was pure enjoyment. He looked so boyish, sitting at the wheel, his long legs stretched out, his voice half sheepish as he assured her the jaunty little car was really a lady despite its loud looks.

"I'm sure she is a lady," she told him solemnly. "Even ladies can be loud on a day like this. Isn't it gorgeous out?" She sniffed the air as if she had just been released from a long confinement. "Let's speed!" she cried, suddenly. "I want to go fast. I'd like to fly." She laughed again, as the roadster leaped forward under his willing hand.

It was a beautiful ride. The lake, when they reached it, was blue and calm. As they approached it they caught glimpses of it through the bordering pines, glittering in the sun like a huge gem cut into a million gleaming facets. Jim sent the car careening down almost to the water's edge with a final flourish of speed, and turned to Lona triumphantly, and an odd sense of coming home gripped her.

Stepping from the car, she stood for a moment looking up and down the beach searching for familiar landmarks. A stone's throw away she saw a shabby bathhouse, unpainted, and her eyes lit up with recognition. Eagerly she followed the curve of the shore. Down there would be a cottage—Allen's, wasn't it? Yes, there it was! Above the pines a thin cloud of smoke hung motionless in the lazy sunshine and she wondered if, perhaps, someone she knew might be there.

"Smells good, this place," Jim was looking about approvingly, sniffing the tangy odor of pine in the air.

She laughed, and reached into the car for her bathing suit. "Beat you in!" she challenged him, and ran down the sands to the bathhouse.

Her bathing suit was old. She had purchased it in a fit of extravagance the first year she had been at Ardmore's, hoping that some day she might swim again. It had lain in its wrappings in the bottom of her suitcase ever since and, as she donned it now, and stepped up to the bathroom mirror, she was sure, for a moment, that it was a terribly old style. Then, as she caught sight of her own slenderness, green-sheathed, her skin white as milk, her spirits soared again, and like a child let out to play, she dashed out into the beach.

Jim was not yet in sight, and she smiled to herself, absurdly pleased at beating him. For a moment she let her eyes wander over the few scattered bathers who lazed in the sun, but she recognized none of them and she felt relieved. It would be awkward to meet any of her old crowd.

She was sitting on the sand, letting streams of its gritty warmth run through her fingers, when Jim appeared. At sight of him loping down upon her, his tall figure showed, terribly out of style. Then, as she caught sight of her own slenderness, green-sheathed, her skin white as milk, her spirits soared again, and like a child let out to play, she dashed out into the beach.

"Race you to the float!" she cried, in an effort to hide it and, wading out, she plunged into the water.

She had loved to swim in the old days, and had come close to being the champion of her crowd. As she cut through the blue ripples, her white arms flashed above her head, she was suddenly glad that there was one thing, at least, she could do well. Behind her she heard Jim splashing to overtake her, and she quickened her stroke, finding her old ease more and more. When she finally climbed up on the bobbing float out in the middle of the lake, he was barely beside her, and she laughed at the look of admiration he bent on her.

"Whew!" he ejaculated. "You're sure a swimmer, girl. Where did you learn?"

"Right here," she told him, his

"I didn't think you could learn to swim like that in fresh water. Mean to tell me you've never been near the ocean?" They ate their lunch on a flat-topped rock to which Lona, proud of her knowledge of the place, led him. It was a queer lunch that set her laughing as she unpacked it. A man's choice. Thick sandwiches of hamburger from Allen's stand, pickles in a paper carton, a whole pie, and a thermos bottle of steaming coffee. Lona giggled as she tried to fit her mouth over one of the huge sandwiches.

"I like 'em that way," Jim assured her, complacently. "A fellow can get a grip on these. Boy, there's been many a time when I'd have given my right eye for a hamburger like this!"

"They are good," Lona found herself devouring hers hungrily. After the exhilaration of the water she was starved. And it was such fun to eat like this.

They had finished their coffee when she caught sight of a bathing party coming along the sands from the Allen cottage, and her head jumped. Gertrude Allen was leading, and among the girls following her was another familiar face. Facing them, swift panic seized Lona. All the hurt of those last days in Bridgewater came rushing back; those days after her father had gone away, and she had been dropped by everybody, stared at and out by these very girls.

Would they cut her now, she wondered? Before Jim! She knew suddenly that it would hurt far more to be cut in front of Jim. Shrinking, she wished she had never come here. She should have known better. Following her eyes, Jim took in the straggling girls.

"I—don't know," Had she looked at him she would have seen a look of understanding leap into his eyes. Swiftly he calculated the distance to their parked car.

"Shall we go?" he asked, his voice carrying an added tenderness. "We can slip over to the car before they get here."

For a moment Lona was tempted. Then she threw up her head. "No!" she said almost fiercely. "I want another swim. Come on."

"Good girl!" she heard him say as she started toward the water. As she approached, a silence fell on the group at the water's edge.

For a moment Gertrude Allen looked at her, startled, then reached for the red water ball beside her. A whipped feeling caught at Lona. Gertrude Allen had been one of her best friends.

Wading out through the water, she plunged in fiercely and struck off toward the middle of the lake. For a moment she forgot Jim as the old bewilderment pain possessed her. It was so unjust. She had done nothing—nothing. And they acted as if she were a leper! Cutting through the water with savage strokes, she sent herself flying forward recklessly. Past the float she went on out into the rippling blue water. In the old days she had often tried to swim the length of the lake, and she had been on the point of succeeding when the tragedy that had blasted her life had overtaken her.

She remembered that old ambition now and, gritting her teeth, set herself for the grind she had taken so joyously in the past. The need to express her outraged feelings put a savage fierceness into her strokes that soon sent her far past the middle of the lake. Jim's voice calling out a worried protest came to her, but she kept on doggedly. She had made three-fourths of the long grind before she realized, suddenly, that she was terribly tired. Her muscles, weakened by disuse, began to protest. Her arms went oddly numb and she felt faint. But she resolved, savagely, not to call for help, then satisfy that crowd of snobs back there.

Floating for a moment's rest, she lifted her head for a glimpse of the shore that was her destination. It was farther away than she had thought—terrifyingly far away.

42 In Attendance At Washington Grange

Music And Mock Wedding Hold Interest

The interesting program of Washington grange was presented by the young women members at the regular session Friday at Washington school. Forty-two members gathered for the meeting.

Byron Bolender, master, conducted the brief business hour, turning the meeting to Miss Mary Walters, chairman of the program committee. "When You and I were Young, Maggie" sung by the group, opened the program, followed by a reading by Miss Edith Spangler. Miss Ruby Harris and Miss Margaret List presented a vocal duet, with Miss Dorothy Glick at the piano. Miss Ethyl May played a piano solo followed by group singing.

Miss Dorothy Glick played the phrases in the musical contest, Mrs. Fred Moeller winning the prize.

The high spot of the evening's entertainment was the manless mock-wedding which closed the program. Members of the wedding party were elaborately dressed for the event.

Miss Martha Hitler was the bride; Miss Alma Glick, the bridegroom; Miss Walters, the minister; Miss Anna Groce, the flower girl; Miss Nellie Kuhn, the bridegroom's mother; Miss Ruby Harris sang the nuptial music.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses during the social hour.

Washington juvenile grange enjoyed a patriotic program during the program hour of the subordinate grange. Mrs. Loring Leist is juvenile grange matron.

David Bolender, master, was in charge of the opening of the grange, the members singing, "America." Billy Stout presented a recitation and Charles McCoy, a harmonica solo. EDITORIAL SWING

Within the last year Mr. and Mrs. Average American were analyzed by world famous authorities in order to determine the country's favorite past-times. From this nationwide survey, outdoor sports, movies, and swing were recorded as the three most prominent amusements of the American public.

What is swing? Is it old or new?

Swing originated from that well known "jazz harmony. It all began some twenty odd years ago in old New Orleans. From mysterious sources a crop of musicians who played merely by ear designed this new kind of rhythm.

The correct definition agreed upon by a group of American musicians is "Swing is a manner of playing recorded or remembered music; no sheet music." Another definition is "Swing is a manner of creating while you play." Your true swing musician never plays a piece the second time he has played it before. He will improvise decidedly different rhythms around the given melody. These basic melodies are usually jazz.

Therefore the more deft the orchestra, the less of a melodic thread is needed.

Thus we see that jazz and swing were rocked in the same cradle. But in my opinion swing has produced music that is far richer than the original jazz.

Below are some terms commonly used in the field of Swing.

Glossary of Swing Slang
Jam session: An informal meeting of musicians playing for their own amusement, without leadership or score.

Aligator: A non playing swing devotee.

Paperman: A musician who plays only written music.

Ride: Easy rhythm.

Screw ball: Crazy, unbridled music.

In the groove: Carried away or inspired by the music.

Cats: The musicians in a Swing band.

Licking their chops: Getting wound up to Swing.

Gang: A medley of songs.

Lick: An original interpretation of phrasing.

Break: Dropping the rhythm for a few beats.

Mugging Light: Soft, staccato swinging.

Mugging heavy: As above with a much heavier beat.

Kicking out: Very free, improvisation.

EDITORIAL SWING

Within the last year Mr. and Mrs. Average American were analyzed by world famous authorities in order to determine the country's favorite past-times. From this nationwide survey, outdoor sports, movies, and swing were recorded as the three most prominent amusements of the American public.

What is swing? Is it old or new?

Swing originated from that well known "jazz harmony. It all began some twenty odd years ago in old New Orleans. From mysterious sources a crop of musicians who played merely by ear designed this new kind of rhythm.

The correct definition agreed upon by a group of American musicians is "Swing is a manner of playing recorded or remembered music; no sheet music." Another definition is "Swing is a manner of creating while you play." Your true swing musician never plays a piece the second time as he has played it before. He will improvise decidedly different rhythms around the given melody. These basic melodies are usually jazz.

Therefore the more deft the orchestra, the less of a melodic thread is needed.

Thus we see that jazz and swing were rocked in the same cradle. But in my opinion swing has produced music that is far richer than the original jazz.

Below are some terms commonly used in the field of Swing.

Glossary of Swing Slang
Jam session: An informal meeting of musicians playing for their own amusement, without leadership or score.

Aligator: A non playing swing devotee.

Paperman: A musician who plays only written music.

Ride: Easy rhythm.

Screw ball: Crazy, unbridled music.

In the groove: Carried away or inspired by the music.

Cats: The musicians in a Swing band.

Licking their chops: Getting wound up to Swing.

Gang: A medley of songs.

Lick: An original interpretation of phrasing.

Breack: Dropping the rhythm for a few beats.

Mugging Light: Soft, staccato swinging.

Mugging heavy: As above with a much heavier beat.

Kicking out: Very free, improvisation.

MARSHALL, O'SULLIVAN

Co-starring in "Dear Victim" will be like taking a trip back home for Herbert Marshall and Maureen O'Sullivan when they share the Silver Theatre spotlight during the broadcast directed by Conrad Nagel over the WABC-Columbia network Sunday at 6 p. m. "Dear Victim", another original by Grover Jones and True Boardman, is projected against a background familiar to both British-born stars. The bulk of the action takes place en route from Marshall's home town London, to Miss Sullivan's childhood home which was Dublin. The co-stars, both making their Silver Theater debut, as well as their first appearance opposite each other, agree that Nagel solved the secret of making them feel at home when he selected the Jones-Boardman story of intrigue between a Briton and an Irish maid.

Nursery rhymes, as they might be interpreted by Hollywood stars, will be featured by Phil Baker and Company during their broadcast over the WABC-Columbia network tonight at 9 o'clock. Baker himself will turn mimic to give his impression of how nursery rhymes might be recited by Charles Boyer, Charles Laughton, and others.

Deserting the children's quarters for an operating room, the comedian will turn doctor to play the lead role in a medical drama entitled "The Operation That Failed", or "Left At The Post Mortem". As a surgeon, Phil will be assisted by his gang of stooges, including Mary Kelly as a nurse, Bottle as an interne, and Eddie DeLange as an onlooker.

CONSERVATION COMMITTEE CHIEF ANNOUNCES CROP INSURANCE POLICY

SPRING WHEAT DISCUSSED BY OHIO OFFICIAL

No Coverage On Acreage Already Insured For Winter Growth

Elmer F. Kruse, Columbus, chairman of the Ohio Agricultural Conservation Committee, Saturday announced policy on crop insurance for spring wheat.

Mr. Kruse said that it will not be possible for farmers to obtain an insurance policy covering additional acreage planted to spring wheat on the same farm where insurance covering winter wheat is effective.

It will be possible however, for farmers to secure insurance on spring wheat seedling where an application has been filed covering winter wheat but where no winter wheat has been seeded, Kruse said.

It will also be possible for farmers to obtain spring wheat insurance if they have not paid their premiums on their winter wheat insurance, Kruse declared.

"A new application should be submitted," Mr. Kruse said, "and it will relate only to the spring wheat to be planted on the farm. The application previously submitted then will not be considered, and the premium for the farm will be computed only on the basis of the acreage to be seeded to spring wheat."

Little Time Left. Mr. Kruse added that there is not much time left for the A.C.C. to accept spring wheat insurance applications.

Farmers financially unable to purchase materials to carry out soil building practices and unable to obtain credit, will be eligible for loans from the Farm Security Administration during 1939, Kruse said today.

He outlined the conditions under which loans will be made to enable low income farmers to participate in the 1939 agricultural program. Loans will be made to farmers who meet the following qualifications:

Those unable to participate in the program because of inability to finance the purchase of materials necessary to carry out soil building practices;

Farmers recommended by county committees;

Farmers who agree to use the full amount of the loan to purchase materials to be used in approved soil building practices;

And farmers who have not executed and agree not to execute an assignment of their payment other than to the Farm Security Administration.

Loans will not exceed 60% of the approximate maximum farm payment. He added that notes covering the loans will be payable on December 1, 1939.

HINES

regarded as important to District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey as it is to Hines. If Dewey succeeds in convicting the veteran political boss it is conceded that his political star will rise higher in the 1940 Republican heavens. Yet if he loses, there is no belief that defeat will hamper him politically.

In closing arguments, hines has been described variously as "another Abraham Lincoln" (this by Lloyd P. Stryker, his chief counsel) and as "master of criminals" (this by Dewey).

The jury, guided by the evidence and the law, as outlined by the court, must fit the proper cap to Hines.

IOWA VET SAYS INJECTIONS WILL CURE DOG ILLS

DES MOINES, Ia.—A mosquito-spread dog disease considered incurable a few years ago now has a 90 percent or better possibility of cure, Dr. J. E. Wright of Atlanta, Ga., told Iowa veterinarians at a meeting in Des Moines recently. "The disease is called 'heart worms' generally, and the mosquito is a known carrier, although there may be others. An intravenous injection effects the cure," he said.

"The disease spread from the south up into the north until in the last few years there have been cases in Maine and Canada. It seems to strike, especially, fine hunting dogs who are out in the open and more easily contacted, but there have been cases of bull terriers in apartment houses, too."

The first noticeable symptoms, Dr. Wright explained, are that the dog tires easily. Later they develop a cough, body sores and chronic coughs. The ailment is especially prevalent in the swamp regions of Florida and north central Florida.

NAZIS' THREAT SUBMARINE, AIR BASE TO DEFY

On Great Circle

The island is on the Great Circle route between New York, Rio De Janeiro and Buenos Aires. The navy's huge patrol planes and the army's four-engined flying fortresses, rated as the world's longest range bombing planes, could scout an area 1,500 miles in any direction from the island. Submarines based there would have virtually the whole of the North Atlantic, South Atlantic, Caribbean Sea and Gulf of Mexico as their cruising areas.

The naval air base facilities as planned now would care for 150 planes, mostly bombers. A similar installation of army planes is envisioned. Berthing facilities for an adequate number of submarines would be provided in San Juan harbor.

At present some of the elementary grades are being taught by substitutes because of the ailment. If more schools are forced to call on substitutes it will be my job to find them."

Circleville schools have reported between 225 and 275 pupils absent each day for the last two weeks.

STARS SAY—

For Saturday Feb. 25

A MEMORABLE day is heralded by the interesting and exciting influence of major planets. There may be sudden and surprising events, precipitated by whirlwind force and, while devastating and disturbing, the after-effects will be propitious. There should be much productive work, with the fruition of long-cherished hopes and wishes.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a year of advancement toward the fulfillment of fond hopes and wishes. Prosperous, productive and happy denouements are to follow sudden and devastating visitations of an unpredictable nature, but after the unprecipitated there will be rich culminations of cherished objectives. It is a most propitious time for pushing in the direction of high goals.

A child born on this day is likely to be a rather unusual individual. It may be expansive, independent in thought and action, with high ambitions and noble aspirations.

DAVEY 'CONTACT' MAN HUNTED IN DAMAGE ACTION

COLUMBUS, Feb. 25 — Hunted by the Franklin county sheriff's office for failing to appear at a deposition hearing, Lee Bradley, self-styled "political contact man" for former Governor Martin L. Davey, was still missing today although he was believed to be in Columbus.

Armed with an attachment order to bring Bradley before L. C. Dillon, notary public, for cross examination in connection with Bradley's $500,000 damage suit against Davey and the General Motors Corp., the sheriff's office started search for him yesterday.

"I think he is in Columbus but I haven't been able to locate him," Chief Deputy Sheriff Ralph G. Garner said today. "He isn't registered at any of the hotels."

William B. Bartels, Bradley's attorney, told Garner he did not know where his client was. Explaining Bradley's failure to appear at the hearing, Bartels said: "The deposition was originally scheduled for Thursday but I told Bradley I would ask for a continuance. Then Charlie Druggan (attorney for Davey) called and said he wanted my client to appear. I told him I couldn't get him immediately. I'll produce him at the proper time."

The attachment order said Bradley also will be asked why he should not be held in contempt for failing to appear.

REICH REPORTS 100,000 LEAVE FOR NEW HOMES

BERLIN, Feb. 25—One hundred thousand Jews have emigrated from the Reich since November, 1938, it was semi-officially estimated today.

This brings the total of Jewish emigrants since 1933, when the Nazis came into power, to 240,000. The United States, South America, France, and England are the favorite lands chosen by the Jews for their new homes since last November's anti-Semitic outbursts in Germany, it was stated.

HOPKINS' TALK WIDELY STUDIED BY MERCHANTS

DES MOINES, Ia., Feb. 25—The maiden speech of Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins as a member of President Roosevelt's cabinet was widely studied today for the promise it held that a new spirit of cooperation among businessmen, farmers, labor and government may accomplish a return to national prosperity.

Hopkins, in his first declaration of his business philosophy since he became secretary of commerce, spoke last night before the economic club in Des Moines.

Asserting that the Roosevelt administration has shifted its emphasis from recovery to reform, Hopkins said he was firmly convinced "that if we could find a way to break the log jam of private investment in the field of utilities, railroads and housing, we will have gone a long way towards taking the essential steps to ultimate recovery."

"The government earnestly wishes that these things be accomplished," Hopkins added, "and we ask that labor, the farmer and business men join us—not across but on the same side of the table—to accomplish our common purpose."

Considered significant was the secretary's acknowledgment that he feels there should be no "general rise" in taxes, that there has been "no indication" the government wants to own and operate all the nation's utilities, and that the railroad problem must be solved before anyone can hope "for anything like complete recovery in America."

CONSERVATION COMMITTEE CHIEF ANNOUNCES CROP INSURANCE POLICY

SPRING WHEAT DISCUSSED BY OHIO OFFICIAL

No Coverage On Acreage Already Insured For Winter Growth

Elmer F. Kruse, Columbus, chairman of the Ohio Agricultural Conservation Committee, Saturday announced policy on crop insurance for Spring wheat.

Mr. Kruse said that it will not be possible for farmers to obtain an insurance policy covering additional acreage planted to Spring wheat on the same farm where insurance covering Winter wheat is effective.

It will be possible however, for farmers to secure insurance on Spring wheat seeding where an application has been filed covering Winter wheat but where no Winter wheat has been seeded, Kruse said.

It will also be possible for farmers to obtain Spring wheat insurance if they have not paid their premiums on their Winter wheat insurance, Kruse declared.

"A new application should be submitted," Mr. Kruse said, "and it will relate only to the Spring wheat to be planted on the farm. The application previously submitted then will not be considered, and the premium for the farm will be computed only on the basis of the acreage to be seeded to Spring wheat."

Little Time Left. Mr. Kruse added that there is not much time left for the A.C.C. to accept Spring wheat insurance applications.

Farmers financially unable to purchase materials to carry out soil building practices and unable to obtain credit, will be eligible for loans from the Farm Security Administration during 1939, Kruse said today.

He outlined the conditions under which loans will be made to enable low income farmers to participate in the 1939 agricultural program.

Loans will be made to farmers who meet the following qualifications:

Those unable to participate in the program because of inability to finance the purchase of materials necessary to carry out soil building practices;

Farmers recommended by county committees;

Farmers who agree to use the full amount of the loan to purchase materials to be used in approved soil building practices;

And farmers who have not executed and agree not to execute an assignment of their payment other than to the Farm Security Administration.

Loans will not exceed 60% of the approximate maximum farm payment. He added that notes covering the loans will be payable on December 1, 1939.

HINES

regarded as important to District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey as it is to Hines. If Dewey succeeds in convicting the veteran political boss it is conceded that his political star will rise higher in the 1940 Republican heavens. Yet if he loses, there is no belief that defeat will hamper him politically.

In closing arguments, Hines has been described variously as "another Abraham Lincoln" (this by Lloyd P. Stryker, his chief counsel) and as "master of criminals" (this by Dewey).

The jury, guided by the evidence and the law, as outlined by the court, must fit the proper cap to Hines.

IOWA VET SAYS INJECTIONS WILL CURE DOG ILLS

DES MOINES, Ia.—A mosquito-spread dog disease considered incurable a few years ago now has a 90 percent or better possibility of cure, Dr. J. E. Wright of Atlanta, Ga., told Iowa veterinarians at a meeting in Des Moines recently.

"The disease is called 'heart worms' generally, and the mosquito is a known carrier, although there may be others. An intravenous injection effects the cure," he said.

"The disease spread from the south up into the north until in the last few years there have been cases in Maine and Canada. It seems to strike, especially, fine hunting dogs who are out in the open and more easily contacted, but there have been cases of bull terriers in apartment houses, too."

The first noticeable symptoms, Dr. Wright explained, are that the dog tires easily. Later they develop mange, body sores and chronic coughs. The ailment is especially prevalent in the swamp regions of Florida and north central Florida.

NAZIS' THREAT SUBMARINE, AIR BASE TO DEFY

Charleston, S. C., and southward to the northern coasts of Brazil.

On Great Circle The island is on the Great Circle route between New York, Rio De Janeiro and Buenos Aires. The navy's huge patrol planes and the navy's four-engine flying fortresses, rated as the world's longest range bombing planes, could scout an area 1,500 miles in any direction from the island. Submarines based there would have virtually the whole of the North Atlantic, South Atlantic, Caribbean Sea and Gulf of Mexico as their cruising areas.

The naval air base facilities as planned now would care for 150 planes, mostly bombers. A similar installation of army planes is envisioned. Berthing facilities for an adequate number of submarines would be provided in San Juan harbor.

Those unable to participate in the program because of inability to finance the purchase of materials necessary to carry out soil building practices;

Farmers recommended by county committees;

DAVEY 'CONTACT' MAN HUNTED IN DAMAGE ACTION

COLUMBUS, Feb. 25—Hunted by the Franklin county sheriff's office for failing to appear at a deposition hearing, Lee Bradley, self-styled "political contact man" for former Governor Martin L. Davey, was still missing today although he was believed to be in Columbus.

Armed with an attachment order to bring Bradley before L. C. Dillon, notary public, for cross examination in connection with Bradley's $500,000 damage suit against Davey and the General Motors Corp., the sheriff's office started search for him yesterday.

"I think he is in Columbus but I haven't been able to locate him," Chief Deputy Sheriff Ralph G. Garner said today. "He isn't registered at any of the hotels."

William B. Bartels, Bradley's attorney, told Garner he did not know where his client was. Explaining Bradley's failure to appear at the hearing, Bartels said:
